

Letter of Recommendation

It is my pleasure to write this letter of recommendation for Milan. I have known them for about years as an undergraduate student in electronics and computer. I have taught them in several courses. I have also mentored and evaluated their project work.

They has consistently demonstrated sharp intellect and a strong work ethic. Academically, they has maintained excellent performance throughout the undergraduate years, showing strength in both theoretical understanding and practical problem-solving. They is also a versatile and quick learner.

I particularly recall the third-year project titled "Recommendation Generator", which required extensive study in areas like AI and algorithms. The project demonstrated their self-learning ability and research interest.

Beyond the classroom, they actively participated in extracurricular activities such as News Anchor.

After graduation, they further developed professionally. I learned that they worked in the software industry and is now employed as a computer engineer — a role that likely combines both technical and research exposure.

On a personal level, they is polite, easy-going, and friendly. It has been a pleasure to teach them, and I have always found them to be respectful and open to feedback.

I am confident that if given the opportunity to pursue the Computer program at Harvard, they will excel and contribute meaningfully.

Please feel free to contact me at dsb@gmail.com if you need any further information.

Yours sincerely,

DSB, CIT Admin

Department of Electronics and Computer

Institute of Engineering, Pulchowk Campus

dsb@gmail.com